This is a very interesting and challenging experience. At the beginning of the conception of the whole project, I wanted to find things I like. I was interested in cooking. At the same time, I missed the food in my hometown because I was out of town. I felt very hungry during the planning of this project. During the cooking period, I thought of turning this fast and short process into a 3D animation, and presented the fast cooking process in a microscopic way. I hope to share my favorite food with all of you from an interesting perspective.

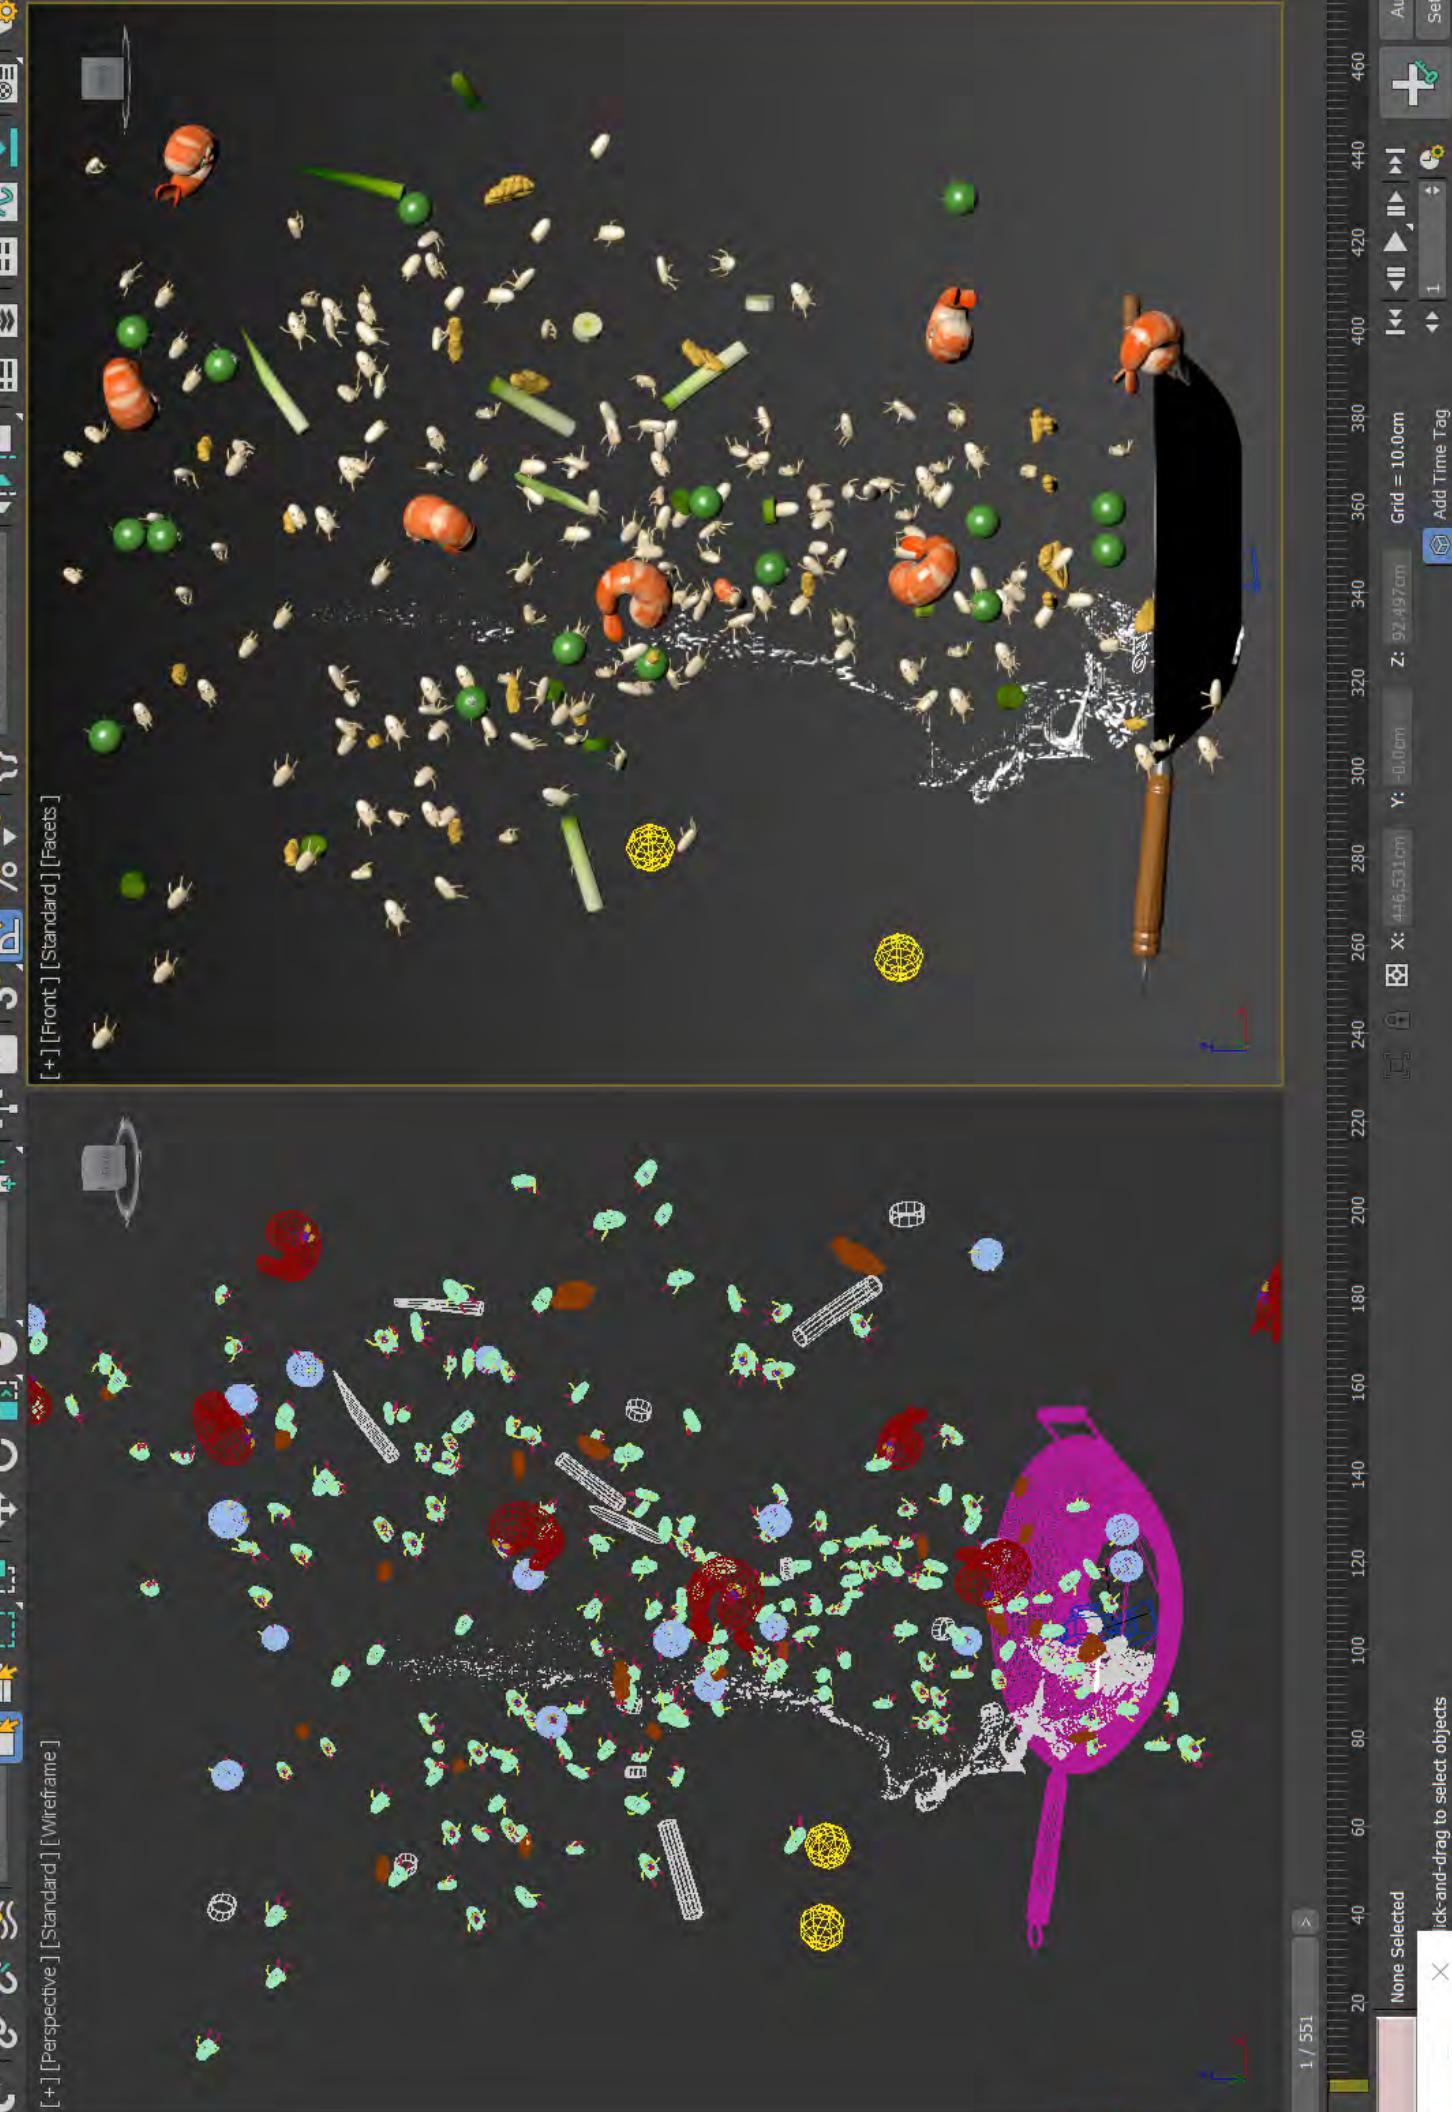

After eight weeks of learning the basics of animation, the effect on the production of this project is very great. The challenge of this project is to be limited to about 30 seconds, hoping to be story-telling. The entire production time was about 8 days, of which half of the time was about 5 days, for the idea of the story, the character design and the production planning. The remaining time will follow the planned plan to sprint. This time I chose 3D animation to present the work, so I must use the time very carefully. It is necessary to pre-render low-quality tests and calculate how much time is needed to render the final pictures. Also due to time constraints, the character design for this time is relatively simple. In the picture style, I want to be closer to the material of the clay doll. I am also very enjoy the material testing.
